ANCHOR STEAM | Anchor Brewing | San Francisco, California

Anchor Steam Beer derives its unusual name from the 19th century when “steam” was a nickname for beer brewed on the West Coast under primitive conditions and without ice. In lieu of ice, the foggy night air naturally cooled the fermenting beer as it brewed on rooftops, while using this method steam could be seen coming off the warm open pans. Once a nickname for any Californian or West Coast beer brewed under these conditions, today the name “steam” is a trademark of Anchor Brewing who has used this American brewing tradition since 1896. 4.9% ABV

DRAKES HEFE | Drakes | San Leandro, California

Classic Bavarian style wheat beer with a refreshing light citrus from malted wheat and aromas of banana and clove derived from the German yeast strain. Drakes used a true Hefeweizen yeast for this beer, but kept the fermentation temperatures slightly lower than those used in Bavaria. The result? A Hefe more in line with the tastes of West Coast drinkers - a clean, refreshing, and relatively dry finish and a more subtle accent of the traditional flavors of banana and clove. 4.5% ABV

BIG DADDY IPA | Speakeasy | San Francisco, California

No lightweight, Big Daddy I.P.A. tips the scales with a huge hop flavor and a dry, clean finish that leaves the scene without a trace. In another state, Big Daddy IPA could be a cult favorite. In California it happens to be a great IPA from a place that’s known for making amazing, near-flawless hoppy ales. It would be easy to overlook this offering from Speakeasy. However, Big Daddy deserves recognition. It has a woody, resinous, and slightly grassy smell with spicy, earthy tones in the flavor. Remarkably balanced, Big Daddy has a strong enough malt presence to take the edge off the hop bitterness and give this beer a clean finish. 6.5% ABV

AMERICAN LAGER | Napa Smith | Napa Valley, California

Much like a traditional German Pilsner; this beer is our take on an Americanized version. Utilizing 100% American 2-row base malt, we provide a brilliant straw colored with striking white head Lager. Subtle malt flavors and aromas come from our choice American malts, coupled with American and European derived hops. All together the taste is light, balanced, and refreshing. 5% ABV
